

Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has made the unsolicited interruptions into my home by phone almost non-existent. I used to receive anywhere between 10 to 20 unsolicited telemarketing calls per week. Now, I receive at most 1 call per week. Usually I do not receive any at all. I actually answer my phone now. I used to screen calls through the answering machine so I did not have to talk to salemen. The FCC should not implement a change that would take precedence over Indiana's law. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law is working wonders for our state, please don't change that!!
